The San Gabriel River Wildlife Sanctuary

The San Gabriel River Wildlife Sanctuary is maintained by the National Audubon Society and sponsored by the local organizations of Southern California, under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. H. Camby, president of the Los Angeles Audubon Society. This sanctuary lies along the banks of the San Gabriel River, twelve miles east of Los Angeles. The rolling Puente Hills form its background on the south-east. To the north are the precipitous San Gabriel and San Bernardino mountains, snow-capped through the winter.

This chosen land comprises about 326 acres, mostly woodlands, containing cottonwoods, alders, creek dogwood, elderberry, wild grape vines, gooseberry and lesser shrubs. Deep in the shade are quiet pools and marshy places, bordering the woods lies an open meadow, while the river furnishes a wide sandy bank. The river itself, being one of Southern California's "upside-down rivers", in this locality happily chooses to remain topside, and its clear waters flow the year round. All this forms a variety of habitats unparalleled within a thirty minute ride of the heart of Los Angeles.

The National Audubon Society has maintained this sanctuary for over ten years. Less than two years ago it purchased an adjacent seven acres, connecting the secluded woodlands with the highway. This acreage contains a variety of fruit trees, a few scattered buildings and a stucco house which affords headquarters for the sanctuary. The plan is to eventually develop an outstanding Nature Center for this Metropolitan area with botanical gardens, museum and student camp facilities.

My duties as "hostess" in this little Audubon House, include welcoming and registering visitors, giving information, and guiding new groups in the field. It is a favorite spot for Scout troops, school and college nature classes, museum collectors (insects etc), and the many nature organizations of the southland.

This sanctuary harbors a number of small animals, opossums, coons etc, but its chief attraction is the bird life. Of course the most famous resident is the cardinal, his flashing beauty and clear whistled calls attract many homesick easterners, as well as curious westerners. Another unusual visitor is the yellow-billed cuckoo. But more than 100 other species are to be found here. This is the home of the red-bellied hawk and the little Anthony Green Heron. Four other herons and the kingfisher find good hunting here. On this St. Joseph's Day, the white-throated swifts cavort with five species of the swallow family, rivaling the fame of San Juan Capistrano. The voice of the Virginia Rail is often heard among the tules that hide the Witching Yellowthroat, and soon the songs of the Long-tailed Chat, Black-headed Grosbeak, and Russet-backed Thrush will combine with the California Thrashers, already ringing in the woods. Orioles and Tanagers will add color to offset the plainer Yellow-legs, Pipits and Sandpipers of the riverside.

More rarely, the White-tailed Kites are seen over the meadow, the Yellow-headed Blackbirds mingling with the Redwings in the reedy places; through one recent season the Harris's Sparrow and Green-tailed Towhee wintered here.

Space forbids naming all the birds. but with this interesting and varied habitat, there is always good birding here. Ample parking space is provided and visitors are always welcome.

ETHEL E. RICHARDSON,

2610 S. Durfee Avenue, El Monte, California.

Note: Mrs. E. Richardson has been a member of our Association since 1942 and was a Berkeley resident up to a year ago. The National Audubon Society, realizing her value in contacting youth groups and her knowledge of all out-door life placed her as hostess at the San Gabriel River Sanctuary. May she continue to enjoy and to help others to enjoy such an interesting place.

Western Chipping Sparrow

In "The Gull," February 1921, Joseph Mailliard records under the heading: "Census of Birds' Nests in the Music Concourse, Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, California, for 1920", the finding of a nest of the Western Chipping Sparrow, (Spizella passerina arizonae). In January 1924 he records another nest of this species and in February 1925 two more. If these nests were correctly identified, the birds were surely present to build them, but still there are no recorded observations of this species in Golden Gate Park.

In the "Directory to the Bird-life of the San Francisco Bay Region", by Joseph Grinnell and Margaret W. Wythe, it is given as "recorded once in San Francisco". This refers to a record by Milton S. Ray in The Condor, vol. XVIII, Nov.-Dec. 1916, under "More Summer Birds for San Francisco County". "While not an uncommon breeder close up to the county line my only record here is April 20, 1908, when I noted a bird at Bosworth and Milton Streets, in the Mission District."

The only other observations that I have been able to locate are three birds of this species seen by Commander Henry E. Parmenter at Lake Merced, September 6, 1931, and one seen by Selma Werner in the Presidio, June 1, 1937. It is also recorded by Dr. J. Grinnell as being seen twice on the Fallon Islands, May 22, 1887, and June 2, 1911.

Dr. Grinnell says the bird is "to be looked for especially among scattered oaks, sometimes seen in shade trees of gardens, city streets and parks." This makes the Music Concourse, where the nests were recorded, a likely place to see the species itself. Now that summer will soon be here let us be on the alert for this species in our vicinity.

April Field Trip

This trip to Bay Farm Island Pond in Alameda on Sunday, the 14th, was attended by 31 members and guests. In order to observe the shore birds at low tide the group did not leave their meeting place at Lincoln Park till noon. The morning sky was overcast with high clouds but by early afternoon the sun was out warm and bright.

The most unusual sight of the walk was the great flocks of thousands of sandpipers that kept flying up from the marshes to circle through the air. A brown pelican was observed from the Bay Bridge by two San Francisco members, who also saw Mallards, Shovellers and American Golden-eyes at Berkeley's Aquatic Park on their way to pick up a guest for the trip.

Another find was a pair of Mockingbirds seen by Charlie Bryant and Irving Gordon in a brush pile back of the City Nursery near Lincoln Park in Alameda. They behaved as if they were nesting there.

Charlie Bryant was the leader of the trip.

The following fifty-four species were observed:

Brown Pelican	Ruddy Turnstone	Red-shafted Flicker
Great Blue Heron	Black Turnstone	Black Phoebe
American Egret	Wilson Snipe	Barn Swallow
Mallard	Hudsonian Curlew	Cliff Swallow
Pintail	Willet	Western Mockingbird
Shoveller	Greater Yellow-legs	Robin
Canvas-back	Least Sandpiper	American Pipit
Greater Scaup	Red-backed Sandpiper	Audubon Warbler
American Golden-eye	Long-billed Dowitcher	English Sparrow
White-winged Scoter	Western Sandpiper	Western Meadowlark
Surf Scoter	Marbled Godwit	Bi-colored Redwing
Ruddy Duck	Sanderling	Brewer Blackbird
Cooper Hawk	Avocet	House Finch
Clapper Rail	Glaucous-winged Gull	Spotted Towhee
Coot	California Gull	Savannah Sparrow
Semipalmated Plover	Bonaparte Gull	White-crowned Sparrow
Killdeer	Foresters Tern	Golden-crowned Sparrow
Black-bellied Plover	Caspian Tern	Song Sparrow

The following 19 members were present: Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Dubois, Mr. and Mrs. H. Leffler; Mrs. Sadie Bozant, Mrs. E. C. Stowell, Mrs. O. Weseley, Mrs. G. Zinke; the Misses A. Berg, F. Blake, J. Fay, M. Goen, B. Myer, F. Stanton, M. Sterne; the Messrs. Charlie Bryant, D. Hurley, A. Myer, H. G. Petersen.

Twelve guests present were Mr. and Mrs. A. Stephens; the Mrs. Hubner, Rudic, Marshall; the Misses M. L. Perry, F. Stewart, G. Crow; the Messrs. J. G. Irving, G. Campbell, T. Hutchinson, J. Rudic.

MISS F. B. STANTON, Historian.
